'Clueless' at the Anchorage

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE -- Singer/songwriter/bass player Steve Goldberger, former RCA recording artist with seventies band Black Creek, now with the Fringe Locals and The Niagara Rhythm Section, will celebrate the launch of his fourth indie CD through Shed Records this Saturday, April 9 at the Anchorage, featuring the Fringe Locals 9-piece big band in concert.

Most of the players who perform on the new CD, Clueless, are scheduled to appear, including, Eric Mahar and Ed Kopala on guitars, Penner MacKay and son Jessie MacKay (both from Matinee Slim & The Ultralight Orchestra) on percussion, David Norris on drums, Gayle Ackroyd, Suzanne Hyatt & Tamica Herod on vocals and Goldberger on bass.

"I'm also hoping some special guests who played on the album will drop in for the occasional tune, including Doug Miller (Niagara Symphony) on flute and digeridoo, and James Brown on steel drum," says Goldberger. "If I'm really lucky, Steve Grisbrook may drive in from Toronto to lay down some guitar and vocal parts, and Mark Lalama may sit in as well."

"Noticeably absent and deeply missed will be our beloved piano and organ player, Joe Ingrao. His contribution to the band over the last few years and to this latest CD was immeasurable. I know his spirit will be with us and I hope that somehow, we will be able to continue to meet the high standards that he set," he added.

The 13 new original songs cross over from tribal, country and folk to tunes tinged with jazz, blues and pop influences. Songs include the soul-searching I Want to Die With No Regrets, the high-energy picking of Rip it Up, the catchy Karaoke Kings & Queens, and Peace, Love, Forgiveness, a gospel/pop/folk song of love and hope featuring an 18-voice choir.
